Teach yourself everything you can prior to using WordPress. Planning ahead will give you an advantage when you start. Find out all you can about creating great content, powerful SEO strategies and the best way to work with Wordpress to give yourself an advantage when you actual begin your work.

Have a plan before you begin publishing. If you know when you have to post, you'll be more motivated to get it done. With the scheduling feature available on WordPress, you can create several posts and schedule them throughout the week.

If there is content or comments that aren't of value, remove them. This makes your website more user-friendly. You can use a plugin called Akismet to filter spam on your website.

Take special characters out of your URLs for your blog posts. This makes it harder for search engine spiders to index your site, so you should get rid of them. While utilizing keywords, make sure you keep those URLs short as well.

Are your posts receiving a considerable number of comments? It can be hard to look through all of them, for yourself and others. A plugin can separate your comments into pages. This makes your website easier to navigate.

Better your search engine rankings by taking a couple minutes with pictures before uploading them. Always remember to add alternative text and title tags. If your image goes on Pinterest, you will get more exposure.

It is important that you securely store your password. On top of that, only download plugins from sites which are reputable and check the reviews before you install anything. You'll lose all your hard work if your site gets hacked or infected with malware.

Organize your media library. It's tempting to upload pictures into the library directly, however, things can easily get disorganized. You should start with a simple folder structure and go from there. Later, you will be able to find an image you want to use much easier.

Don't install more plugins than you need. Plugins are cool and all, but they can make your site load at a snail's pace. They can really bog things down, which will impact how you do in the SERPs. Slow sites do not do as well in the SERPs as those that are optimized for speed.
